

Quote of the month

„Forty percent of the driving schools surveyed expect that no learner drivers will be lost to them despite the closure. Personally, I find it very difficult to imagine that after the reopening of the driving schools there will be a short-term capacity utilisation similar to that before the Corona crisis“.

Expectations for the situation after reopening

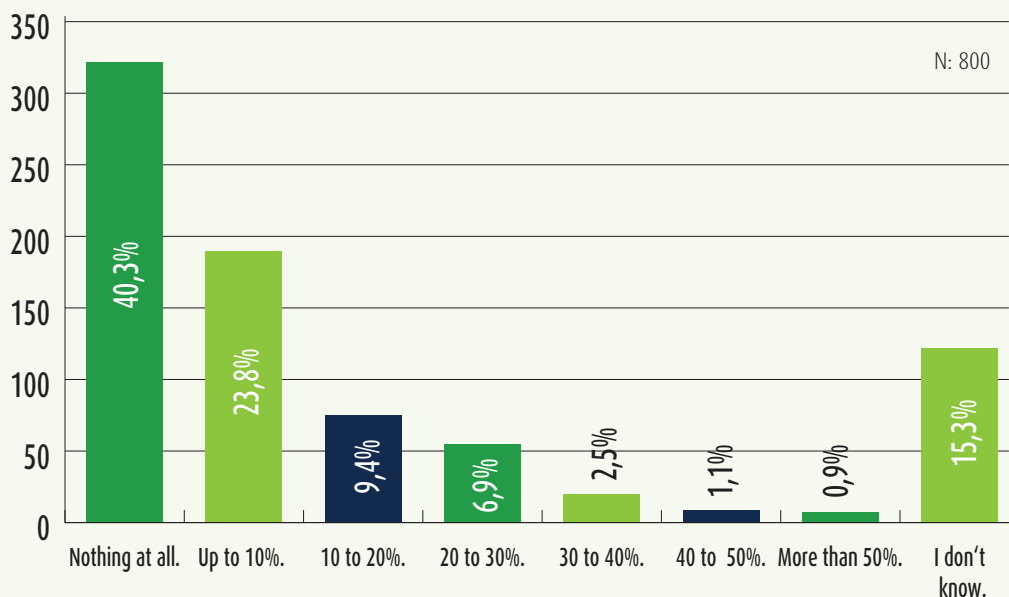

(assuming that it will reopen on 20.04.):

N: 793

- My driving school will have to hire new driving instructors again
- My driving school will pick up exactly where we left off
- My driving school will probably remain closed

Expectations of how many students will be lost through the ordered closures:
