

Quote of the month

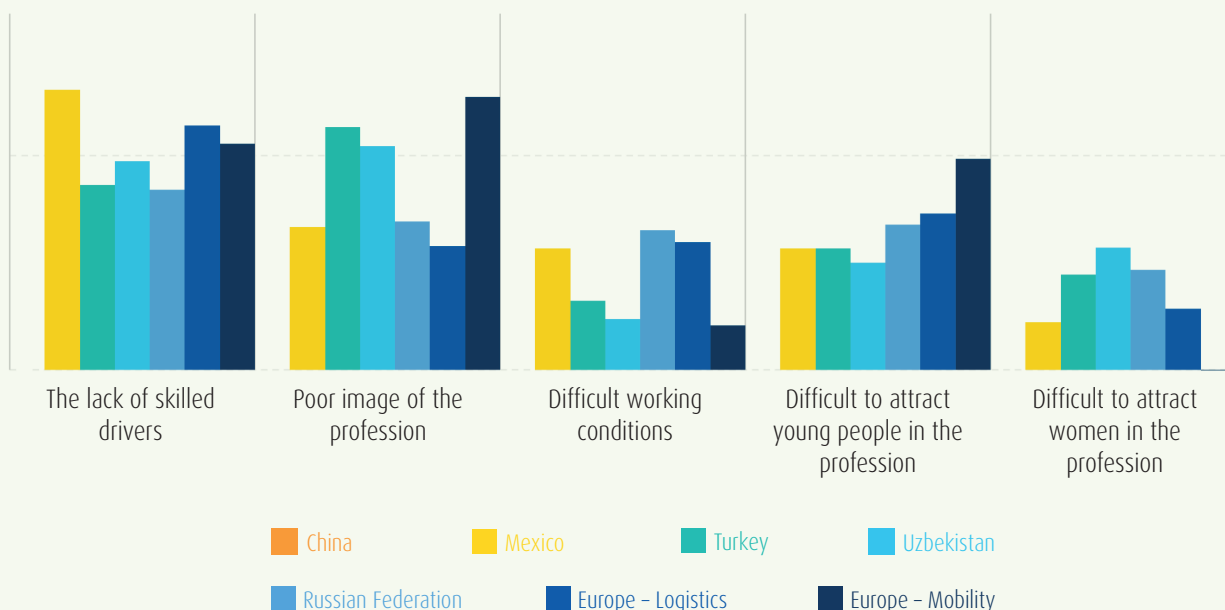

„The International Road Transport Union recently published a study on the shortage of professional drivers. Among other things, it investigated the reasons for the worldwide shortage of drivers in the logistics industry. MOVING is convinced that appropriate training capacities in driving schools are also necessary to counteract the shortage of professional drivers in the short and medium term. Here, I believe there is an urgent need for support for the driving schools.“

Jörg-Michael Satz, President of MOVING International Road Safety Association e. V.
