

Quote of the month

"According to a survey conducted in the summer of 2025, 60.5% of respondents consider their own driving style to be solidly average, while 15.9% believe they are significantly better than most other road users. At the same time, 7.9% say they occasionally make mistakes while driving, and 14.3% report that they do not drive at all. Clear regional differences emerge: in Berlin, Saarland, and Schleswig-Holstein, around 23% consider themselves above-average drivers, whereas in Thuringia and Mecklenburg-Western Pomerania this share is only between 3 and 5%."
